Central Banks Co-operation.

The future of the Bank for International Settlements forms the subject-matter of a very interest ing article in the July issue of the Midland Bank's monthly review. About a year ago the review dealt with the report of the "Young" Committee, and the present article once more surveys the field, including the developments of the past twelve months, considering the Young Plan, in all its breadth and most of its detail, as a fait accom-

After detailing the capital, the review points out that "ur ler The Hague agreement the bank appears to be assured of free balances, belonging to the creditor Powers amounting to the equivalent of Rmk. 125,000,000. Further, the German Government has to main tain a fluctuating balance, free of interest, not exceeding Rmk 100,000,000, while it may elect, in consideration of prescribed condition benefits, to place a further long-term deposit of Rmk. 400,000,000 with the bank.

"In addition to these amounts, the bank will have the use for short periods of the fluctuating sums flowing in from Germany for distribution. Working on these figures and possibilities, it seems that the assets of the bank, principally in the form of holdings of various currencies, will run into tens of millions sterling, though probably in the early stages not as much as £100,000,000.

Influencing Exchange. "This is a vague estimate; if cannot but be vague; but it indicates that the bank will have considerable, resources with which to act, if so permitted, on the various exchanges and monetary centres. In this connection a second question arises as to how far the bank will be prepared to sacrifice profits or actually to incur losses on particular transactions undertaken with the object of steadying exchanges and monetary conditions. Time alone can supply an answer to this question—though even time may not do without a desirable measure of publicity subsequent to activity. At least the bank is required by its statutes to publish an annual report and monthly statements of condition, which will be as informative or as cryptic as the powers that be may choose to accounts make them.

"Again, it remains to be seen to what extent the various central banks will permit the Bank for International Settlements to operate in their individual markets with objects mentioned. Each central bank has the right to veto any proposal of the Bank for International Settlements to undertake specified operations in its own market, except-an extremely important exception in some cir cumstances-when it is desired to withdraw funds previously placed in a particular market with the central bank's consent. "It is conceivable, therefore, that the bank might be crippled by constant obstruction from an important central bank or from number of institutions acting separately or in concert. Such restriction of activity might not be of consequence in some

He gave some interesting illustrations the signs which it is not easy to convey in print. No one apparently has ever attempted to compile a vocabulary of the sign language, doubtless because of the difficulty of expressing gestures and movements in words. Perhaps it might be possible to employ some system of notation such as was invented by the late Cecil Sharp in writing down his folk dances. In the deaf and dumb sign language each the Great Northern Telegraph finger of the hand has its meaning. The opportunity of serving you Company (Limited) of Den The thumb, for instance, connotes "good", and a deaf person wishing to convey that he feels well, or that Lyman, Dairy Farm, from a thing is good, would clench the fist, holding the thumb up. "silly", "idle", "empty", and so on. Placing the fingers in the form of a crown on the top of the head suggests "king". "Hunger" is expressed Ly. running the thumb down the ribs, the idea being that the ribs are standing out, or extreme hunger by pressing the fingers into the stomach. Twelve Shots Missed! Witness fired another six shots at Dalip Singh as he crossed the compound, reloaded and fired another six shots as he went up the stairs. None appeared to take effect.

Mr. Lindsell: That's an obvious lie. It's impossible to fire six shots, reload and fire another six while the man was crossing the compound. Resuming, witness said: I closed the compound door, locked it and secured the key. Then I went to

K. S. "DULEEP" TO ENGLAND'S AID.

Qualification Doubts Ruled Out.

K. S. Duleepsinhji, the young Indian player who has received a 'Varsity education at Cambridge, has been the subject of many arguments in cricketing circles. Some advocate strongly for his inclusion in the England XI, others maintain that he has not the qualifications for an England Test player. As an opinion on this subject, might I suggest that he has played against South Africa and New Zealand, and that if he was not fully qualified he would not have been selected.

The fact remains that Dulcep played for England and scored a brilliant century in his first. Test match. He just failed to register the half century in his second venture and thus fully warranted

A slim youth, Duleepsinhji is almost without mannerisms at the wicket. He has neither the balloon-like silk shirt nor any of those pronounced panther-like movements which used at once to direct attention to his uncle.

Quickness of eye and perfection of body balance are two things that immediately strike you about his batsmanship. He evidently sees the ball so "early" that he nearly always has ample time for his stroke, and his poise is so good that he gets full weight behind his

When Stockwin was at Northampton he spoke to K. S. Duleepsinhji just before he went in to bat and wished him luck in making a good score. He replied "I hope I make over fifty." He made 198, and when Stockwin congratulated him, "Duleep" explained what he meant by mentioning fifty.

He told Stockwin that there was an old standing agreement by which "Ranji" sent him a cheque for £50 for every fifty runs he made, and an additional pound per run over that total. "Duleep" has consequently profited considerably. especially at the expense of Northamptonshire, for in the last match with that county he made 333. FIFTH TEST

THE LION TAME KANGAROO?

TO-DAY'S GREAT GAME AT THE OVAL

Fifty years ago the first match between England and Australia took place at the Oval. It came about in response to a general feeling among cricketers and the cricket public, who considered that the Australian touring side of that year, after a series of wonderful performances against local eighteens, should not leave the English shores without meeting a really powerful representative side. In short, a national demand practically compelled the arrangement of this now historic encounter.

Kennington Oval has not proved-a-happy-bunting-ground-for the Australians. Out of the fifteen matches played on that ground, the one solitary success of a touring side dates back to 1882, when the visitors just scrambled home by seven runs. England have won nine matches and five have been left drawn.

We have not yet received, a cable dealing with the composition of the England XI. but conclude, from past achievements, that the following will be selected.

D. G. BRADMAN THE RUN MACHINE.

At Twenty-One Joins Immortals.

£3 A RUN.

I do not think that there is much doubt concerning whether Don Bradman is the world's best batsman or not. We have all seen a number of hitters who could score when the gods were kind, and a number of batsmen who could score in the orthodox way. But to be able to see a batsman attack good bowling with every known shot and dancing feet and yet keep the ball always on the carpet—that is purest genius. Bradman, at 21, is with the immortals - Ranji, sound, when opposed to the strong-Trumper, and Charles Macartney, er bowling side. His methods are eminently sound—his judgment phenomenal; and he is always in a position to score.

He also seems to have plenty of time in which either to play the ball or leave it alone.

He is the ideal No. 3, taking every advantage of the moment when the sting of the bowling has been withdrawn by such batsmen as Woodfull and Ponsford. There is no sitting on the splice with him, he performs his duty-pulverising an attack that has for a couple of hours bombarded a rock-like de-

RISKS TAKEN.

No cricket can compare with Test cricket. There is an atmosphere surrounding international contests hardly ever experlenced in other games; and while some are lifted into greatness by it, others are crushed and their reputations are lost.

Only born fighters survive in Test matches, they are transformed, and the "big match temperament" is no empty phrase. It is an apt summing up of those qualities which go to the making up of the great cricketer.

When my grandmother wheeled me out in a mailcart, writes P. H. J. in the Manchester Guardian, the hearth rug of the Queen was still inviolate and the mighty shades of Gladstone and Disraeli loomed over the Lillipution world of subsequent politics dwarfing all things non-Victorian. On those delightful perambulations (helped out in interest by books like "Eyes and No Eyes" and "Common Objects of the Country") we paused at the "meenister's" for a cup of tea, and on that lawn were women, as stately as ships, whose skirts swept the daisies with all the grace with which Swinburnian poetry brushed its ringing rhymes over the lesser lyrics of his successors.

HINTS FROM PARIS.

Especially Suitable In

Manila, July 19.

It so happers this year that the prevailing materials used by the Paris designers and the most popular colours shown in the advanced styles for the Fall are particularly suited to the needs of women in a warm, moist-climate such as that of Manila at the present time. Unless a visit is to the mountain provinces, one is rarely able to get very far away from the summer weight fabrics though there is a general change in colour effects noticeable from the beginning of the rainy season. The rich colours which are a little too warm looking for dry days are the leading colours in the Autumn fashions and are more and more in evidence in the shops and popular dining and dancing places in this city. Rich blues, browns, greens and reds are being shown in evening dresses as well as in daytime frocks. Diana Merwin writing on the Paris fashions for the Associated Press sends along the word that; "Browns are preferably tobacco, deadleaf and mahogany. Shades of green run to ivy, bottle and emerald with pistacho green satin still going strong. Blue shades emphasize the strong ultra-bright marine and electric with more than a touch of turquoise in the lighter shades.

"Bright turquoise combines stunningly with stamp red and the dressmakers utilize the combination for sport clothes particularly. "Raspberry and dull claret shades are the newcomers-among the reds. One of the designers stresses raspberry red ensembles for formal afternoon wear in the Autumn wardrobe."

These materials with dots and spots are still very much the vogue for evening and daytime dresses alike. Every one is wearing spots and the ingenuity of the designers of materials is taxed to the utmost to find enough variety for the spots. As Miss Merwin remarked: "The well-dressed woman puts one over on the leopard this summer for she changes her spots nearly every time she changes her cos are using it for trimming purposes. Several evening dresses made entirely of all-horsehair lace have been displayed in Paris but more designers use the horsehair to edge flounces or to serve as a foundation for tiers on tulle and lace dresses.

The bowknot which has recently been hovering about in the vicinity of the waistline has now come to rest on many new frocks just above the knees. In this way it marks the focal point of fullness or godets in the skirt. Often the bowknot is used as the solitary trimming of a smooth, plain-fitting and very chic dress made of some heavy material such as crepe marocain. These bows are often of impresive size.

Mme. Ganna Walska McCormick has been one of the first to introduce shoulder-length gloves to match her jewellery. She appeared recently in a gathering of British and French people dressed in a white satin ensemble and wearing green suede gloves to match her emerald necklace and earrings.

As a contrast to the long kid gloves which are making their appearance at formal functions, Mrs. Findlay Westover arrived at a tea buttons.

recently in New York wearing black lace mits, like those of our grandmother's, to complete her ensemble of black afternoon hat and black lace gown of long and flowing lines.

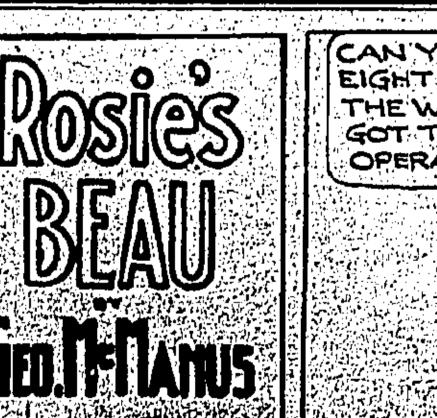

A recent innovation for sports wear is the beret and scarf to match in colour. Oftimes they are made of the same material as well. Mrs. Hunter Marston of New York attended an outdoor sports meet a short-time ago wearing a striped silk beret and scarf to match, the darker strip bringing out the tone of her suit. Berets have been making a more and more increased appearance in Manila in the last few weeks.

A succession of triumphs under the Belasco banner expanded "Emperor Waltz" (Strauss), her fame throughout the country "Wine Woman & Sing" (Strauss), and won her a reputation far beyond the confines of her activity.

More evidence of her appeal to theatre-goers is exhibited in the keen interest in "South Sea Rose," "Ave Verum" (Mozart), her second starring Edx Movietone picture, which is showing to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Her initial "Happy Days Are Here Again", talking picture, "Frozen Justice," "Lucky Mc, Lovable You", created such a clamour from screen fans that a career as brilliant as her "Sunnyside Up"-Selection, stage career was instantly ensured. The result is that screen fans throughout the nation have been pouring appeals into her fan mail box at Fox. Studios urging more pictures for a new favourite.

ABOUT ROME.

["The Resurrection of Rome," by G. K. Chesterton, author of the Everlasting Man, etc., Hodder & Stoughton.] (To be published in the Autumn.)

In his introduction Mr. Chesterton tells us that he wrote this book "for those who would like to like Rome, but feel an honest temptation to dislike it. This sounds paradoxical perhaps, but is, in reality, the attitude of many people towards the Eternal City for, unconsciously, they are a little jealous of that power emanating from Rome that penetrates to the uttermost parts of the uttermost parts of the earth." Mr. Chesterton holds no brief for Rome. He is not out to convert; he is not out for political propaganda; he is not out to "boost" Rome as a resort for tourists. Rome made an amazing impression on him and he is eager and glad to pass on that impression to any who will listen to him. He takes his readers back through the ages and shows them Rome at the height of its glory and also O. "TOO BUSY." NO TIME FOR MARRIAGE.

According to an American film star who has just arrived in Britain, the bottoms has fallen out of the marriage market in Hollywood-everybody is "too busy to married" since "the talkies" arrived, because when they are not making films they are all taking lessons in singing and elecution.

The deadlock seems as inauguration of another long complete as the one recommended by Hamlet-"I say, we will have nomore marriages; those that are married already, all but one, shall live; the rest shall keep as they are." will mean far fewer news stories much smaller income for lawyers, but (at least on the surface) an era of pink and polished propriety will has hitherto been celebrated for
